He was born in Wilmot March 24, 1858, the son of the late William and Elizabeth Faulkner. He was educated here and spent his lifetime in Wilmot and vicinity.

As a young man, he was associated with his father and brother, Fred, in a blacksmith shop. On January 13, 1891 he was united in marriage to Miss Carrie L. Udell. He operated the Udell farm in Salem township for many years, returning to the village of Wilmot over 40 years ago.

Sheriff's Officers Credited With Saving Life of Truck Driver

Lake County Sheriff's Deputies Julian Claude and Walter Henderson undoubtedly saved the life of Kenneth Brenner, 23-year-old Chicago truck driver, when they removed him from the cab of a truck they found parked on Route 12 a short distance north of Wilmot Tuesday night and administered first aid. Capt. Herman Holbek of the Antioch Rescue squad said yesterday.

The deputies, who have received Red Cross training under a program put into effect by Sheriff Walter Atkinson, had already restored Brenner to consciousness when the rescue squad arrived. Brenner stated that his truck became stalled when the rear axle broke. He said that he had previously reported that the exhaust pipe of the truck was defective, but that it had not yet been repaired.

On Sunday the squad was called to Wilmot, where Thomas A. O'Connor, 21, of Lake Forest, had sustained a broken ankle, toe and kneecap while skiing. O'Connor, who is connected with the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company as a buyer, was brought to the Antioch Rescuer and transferred to a Lake Forest ambulance.

Members of the Women's Army Corps now are entitled to receive the same allotment benefits that apply for men in the Army. It is announced by Captain Elizabeth C. Graham, WAC Recruting Officer for Illinois.

The only exception to this rule, Capt. Graham states, is that women with dependent children under the age of 14 are not eligible for membership in the WAC. However, a WAC with dependent children between the ages of 14 and 18 may make allotments, and receive additional government benefits, that are the same as for soldiers.

The regulation also provides, Capt. Graham said, that WACs may make allotments, which are supplemented by government benefits, to husbands who are dependent upon them for support. Provisions for dependent parents, sisters or brothers, are the same as for men in the Army.

Cpt. Russell K. Luedtke, who has been on foreign duty in the Pacific area with a paratroop unit, is home for the first time in 3 years on a 30-day furlough, visiting his parents, Otto Luedtke, at Loon lake.

"I'm sorry," says Pvt. Lyle F. Wohlfel, U. S. Marine corps, son of the Fred Wohlfels of Grass Lake road, "that I've not written before this to thank you for sending me the Antioch paper. That little paper sort of makes a fellow feel pretty good, just reading about some of your friends seems to turn a bad day into a good one. I've been in California about two months and still can't praise the climate. The air is so damp that in mornings and evenings we wear overcoats. Some people may like it in California, but I'll still take little old Antioch."

"I'll be through with boot training in about two weeks and I have hopes of getting a furlough. Home will be my first stop, and it sure will be good to see Antioch. When I get home I hope to thank you American Legion men myself."

Pvt. Wohlfel is stationed at San Diego, Calif.

"My Dad, G. O. Berg, is with us, and my brother will be here permanently when he returns. He has been in service since April 29, 1942."

Dick Lyons and Gov. Green to Attend Rally

Republican Candidates Will Address Waukegan Meeting Mar. 11

Regular Republican candidates in the Primary election Tuesday, April 11, will visit Waukegan on Saturday, March 11, for a huge Republican rally, to be held at the Circuit Court room, court house, at 8 P. M.

Governor Dwight H. Green heads the list of speakers, which includes Richard J. Lyons, candidate for United States senator; Lieut. Governor Hugh W. Cross, candidate for re-nomination; State Senator Arnold P. Benson, candidate for secretary of state; Auditor Arthur C. Lueder, candidate for re-nomination; Conrad F. Becker, candidate for state treasurer; Attorney General George F. Barrett, candidate for re-nomination; former State Senator Earle Benjamin Searcy, candidate for clerk of the Supreme Court; and Congressman-at-Large Stephen A. Day, candidate for re-nomination.

Ben L. Berve, chairman of the republican State Central committee, said today that the regular party candidates are receiving big ovations in every community. Before primary day, the candidates will have visited every one of the 102 counties in the state, and they will have visited more than one community in many of those counties, Berve said.

"The campaign is being based on the record of the Republican administration in Illinois since the election of Governor Green and his fellow state officers," Berve said.

Cite War Accomplishments

"That record speaks for itself. Within the space of three years a cash reserve fund of more than $70,000,000 has been amassed—first in the history of the state. In war service, Illinois has the finest record in

GOV. DWIGHT H. GREEN

United States, and this record was made under the leadership of the Illinois War Council, of which Governor Green is chairman, and Lieut. Governor Cross and Senator Benson are chairmen of important committees.

"In service for war veterans, Illinois has become the first in the nation under the present Republican administration. Governor Green's committee on veteran rehabilitation and employment has set up a program which has been endorsed by the American Legion, and recommended as the best program in the union. More recently, under the leadership of the Republican administration, the Illinois general assembly passed legislation providing for voting by men and women in the armed services which has been lauded by authorities as the best and most workable soldier vote program in the United States."

The keynote of the 1944 campaign was sounded by Governor Green in an address before the Republican National Committee in Chicago just before the beginning of the tour:

"American representative government, versus New Deal centralization or state-socialism is the paramount issue of the day," Governor Green said.

Wisconsin Livestock Is Now at Peak in Value

Wisconsin farmers began 1944 with the largest number of livestock having the highest value on record, according to Walter H. Ebling, statistician for the Wisconsin and United States Department of Agriculture.

Wartime demands for food and a succession of good crop years have increased the livestock numbers on farms in Wisconsin and the United States to an all-time high. With the record number of animals on farms and the highest farm prices for livestock and other farm products since the last World War, the total value of the state's livestock population at the beginning of this year was the highest on record for any January.

The livestock inventory as of January 1 shows that Wisconsin farmers had a total of 3,947,000 head of all cattle, 2,451,000 head of swine, 451,000 horses, 4,000 mules, 514,000 sheep and lambs, 19,786,000 chickens, and 118,000 turkeys. The estimated farm value of this large livestock population is $533,787,000, which is nearly $42,000,000 more than the value placed on the number of all livestock on Wisconsin farms on January 1 of last year.

Red Cross Drive Will Open Here Wed., March 1

Roman B. Vos Is Named Chairman for Antioch Village, Township

Roman B. Vos has been announced as chairman of the Antioch Village and township committee for the Red Cross War Fund drive which will open in north Lake county March 1. Vos was unanimously appointed at a meeting of the Lake County Red Cross board Wednesday evening.

Volunteers willing to aid in the drive may notify Chairman Vos before next Wednesday.

A total goal of $100,000 has been set for north Lake county. The national fund to be raised has been set at $200,000.

Antioch township went "over the top" on this drive last year, and this year's chairman has expressed the hope that the fine record made in 1943 under the chairmanship of W. I. Scott will be equaled in the 1944 campaign.

Need Is Growing
The requirements for Red Cross work, both national and in the home communities, continue to grow with the increased needs of the expanding armed service, Vos explains.

The number of servicemen and their families now being served by the Red Cross represents a vastly greater figure than that of a year ago, he adds, and the dispersion of forces to more and more combat zones and outlying stations necessitates Red Cross service at many more locations. Its work includes services in army and navy hospitals at home and abroad and in army and navy camps in all areas; blood donor service, prisoner of war aid, foreign war relief and civilian war aid, and emergency morale supplies for men in combat zones and hospitals.

God and the Heavy Artillery

"Nazi officers, scrambling to board transport planes to flee the bloody Dneiper bend trap, shouted back to their doomed men to 'keep on! Relief will come,' the newspaper Ivestia quoted captured Germans as saying today."—Associated Press despatch from Moscow.

That occurrence, commented upon by the Russian newspaper as one of the most sordid chapters of German military history, sheds a curious light on the progress of the war in Europe.

Despatches from the Anzio beachhead tell of German artillery emplacements firing on their own troops to prevent them from surrendering.

Quite a while ago, we remember reading an article by a man who saw the Kaiser's military machine start to go to pieces in the first World War. He made the prediction that Germany's power in this war will begin to crack, not with a revolt of the people, but of the army; and that this breakdown would begin, not with the troops, but with the generals.

"When the army begins to break—then the end will be near," he said.

Of course, it may be a long time before the end of the war, still, but the progress toward victory over the Axles seems to have about it a curious quality of inevitability.

"God," said Napoleon, "is on the side with the heaviest artillery."

The Allies are beginning to bring up the big guns now, on land, sea and air, and they are beginning to speak.

However, we have been wondering if the belief of the ancients in that powerful but mysterious force called Fate is not beginning to enter the conflict.

"We were guided by a merciful Providence," said one of the American leaders in the Pacific area, after one of the earlier victories over the Japanese.

Maybe the time has come for us to paraphrase Napoleon's old saying—"The side that God is on HAS the heaviest artillery!" * * *

Spring Harbingers

Among the harbingers of spring this year we would like to list, respectively, the first robin, the first violet, and the campaign speeches of candidates for election in the primaries.

"Rally 'Round the Bond Drive"

Long years ago, in conjunction with another conflict, were written the words, "We'll rally 'round the flag, boys, we'll rally once again, shouting the battle cry of freedom!"

While we cannot all rally around the flag in person, literally speaking, these days, we can rally around it in spirit by supporting the Fourth War Loan drive to the limit of our ability.

Many residents of Antioch Township have given generously of their own time to help make the drive a success. The finest thanks we can give them—and those of the armed services—is to buy that extra bond.

WILMOT

DeWitt of Silver Lake was called, as one leg was badly injured. She was taken to Kenosha for X-Rays to determine the extent of her injuries.

New Deal Publication Says American Farmer Is Not Sanitary*Wants Japs to Teach Farmer How to Bathe

A slur aimed at every American farmer came to light recently when it was disclosed that the War Relocation Authority, set up by President Roosevelt, urged interned Japanese to take jobs on farms in mid-west states in order to teach Americans lessons in sanitation.

On Dec. 5, 1943, almost exactly two years after the attack on Pearl Harbor, Washington newspapers featured the astounding story of how a New Deal publication, "Mid West Frontiers," published at taxpayers expense by the WRA, addressed the Japs in these words:

"Believe it or not, some few tenants and seasonal workers (in Ohio and Michigan) do not bathe. They think it is unhealthy. We need you people to change our ideas about this. You have a lesson to teach Ohio and Michigan farmers in sanitation. It is a contribution you can make to our way of living."

Many Congressmen immediately apologized to the patriotic farmers for this slur against them.

Wilmot Hills was favored with excellent skiing over the week-end and the usual crowd from Chicago, Milwaukee and surrounding towns were in attendance. A man from Lake Forest fell and broke an ankle and the Red Cross ambulance came for him. The toes were run on Washington's birthday also.

This disclosure came as a climax to reports of poor management, wasteful administrative practices and excessive payroll-padding by the War Relocation Authority, a New Deal agency.

On December 7, 1941, all of the 110,000 Japanese in the United States naturally were suspected, although doubtless some were loyal to this country, and the Army moved them into inland camps where the Japs were kept under strict surveillance. No trouble was recorded so long as the army had charge of the Japs, but on March 18, 1942, President Roosevelt set up the "War Relocation Authority," without consulting Congress.

A typical New Dealer, Dillon Myer, was made director of the new bureau which today has more than 2,000 employees (250 in Washington) and has obtained over $120,000,000 from Congress. Despite these enormous expenditures, the WRA has arrived at no successful formula for the interned Japanese.

Washington was astounded more than a year ago with reports that a Japanese association was working closely with WRA to have Japanese "freed" from the camps.

Still later came a well-organized move, originating in the WRA, to move all the interned Japs back to their West Coast homes.

A Democratic Congressman told the nation recently the true story of the Japanese riots at the Tule Lake Relocation Center in California and accused the present political Administration of mismanagement and of coddling the Japanese.

Interned Japanese are being urged by a War Relocation Authority to come to the Mid-West to teach Michigan and Ohio farmers clean and efficient agricultural practices, according to a copyrighted story in the Washington Times-Herald. Here is the appeal, as published by the WRA office in Cleveland:

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I: The story of the famous 18th and 19th Bombardment Groups, of Lieut. Col. Frank Kurz and his crew, who flew the first air campaign that saved the day for the United Nations in the Southwest Pacific. Lieut. Kurz, who was pilot of the old Fortress, known as "The Rock," which he operated from Clark Field, in the Philippines, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck. He peddles to the wreck of Old 99, finds eight of his crew lying in an irregular line.

CHAPTER II: Lieut. Kurz tells how orders to camouflage Old 99 were countermanded; instead they were to load bombs. So he went to the bomb bays, closed them with cameras and rush the camouflage. Preparations made for taking pictures of Formosa. Some of the "friendly" happenings to the flight of Jap planes.

CHAPTER III: Bomb hit the mess hall. The Japs move on. They hear another plane overhead. It's their old friend, the Zeros coming in from the direction of Corregidor. The boy duck back into their foxholes.

CHAPTER IV: The pilot of the plane that had been flying above the group is Colin Kelly, about to land on his first mission. Buzz Mueller is chased by Japs in his P-40. He meets his death, but manages to shoot down two Zeros before he goes down.

CHAPTER V: The young people of the parishioners of the church return. The death of Colin Kelly.

"Of course when I heard all this I also heard about the whopping big target he'd hit and sunk. But I didn't think much of this at the time, and I don't think Colin did either."

"If I know the boy, and I think I do, after he saw his oxygen system was on fire, and had given orders for the other guys to jump, and was sitting there hanging back on his stick and fighting his rudder in order to give them a chance to do it, he wasn't thinking about how many gross tons that Japanese ship displaced, but about his parents and Marlan and little Corkie. And later when he was trying to crawl out of the upper escape hatch before his clothes caught on fire, it was the same, and still later, when he cleared the hatch but saw the ground coming up at him, too close and too fast for his chute ever to have a chance to crack open. I don't think he was worrying about how big his posthumous medal was going to be, but only worrying about Marlan and Corkie and what a lousy thing it would be for them, and how that gay little girl could put together what would be left of a happy life for herself, and make a living for Corkie, and how much he wanted to help her do it, only now he couldn't ever."

"A little later in the afternoon one of our fighters came in and began to circle the field, fluttering like a wounded bird. I could see it was something serious — guessed even then an aileron might be shot away, so I gave him the green light to come in and land. He began to make passes at the field, cutting his throttle to pick out the strip of straight sand through the bomb craters, marked by a maze of red flags we'd put up. But each time he'd throttle back his left wing would drop and he'd have to gun her again, making a slow climbing circle up off the field."

"It began to get me. 'Come on, son, come on, put it down, before we get into trouble.' On the last trial he gunned it, came around, and then tried to pull up straight, but too late. Teetering down the field, he caught one wing on one of our slightly damaged Fortresses, tearing it off, and then himself cartwheeled off into the trees — killing a sergeant who had been working on a plane back there. The pilot wasn't hurt much himself, but one more of our precious few P-40's was gone."

"But, following orders, I was still giving the Fortresses the red light to stay in the air, and I began to worry about this. Maybe orders had been issued to bring them in, but someone had failed to notify me. Some of them would circle for a while, and then would head on back for Del Monte, more than six hundred miles away, while they still had enough gas to get there."

"Finally old Jim Connally said the hell with it, and came on in without my giving him any light at all. He needed more gas to get back to Mindanao and couldn't perch up there all day, and a little after this the Colonel said I could give the others the green light to come in and gas up, although any hour, any minute, we were expecting the Japs back. He wanted to save those remaining Forts at any cost."

"It was a weird night—and I spent most of it up in that tower. We'd rigged up a jack-leg system of landing lights on our sand strip, and it worked about half the time. When we finally did get a plane onto the ground, two men with flashlights would walk at each wing tip as it taxied to the dispersal area, to keep it from tipping over into bomb craters."

"I was finally relieved about three o'clock in the morning, but it wasn't safe to sleep in the barracks. They had moved our cots out into the middle of a thick cornfield and we slept there—or tried to sleep. All night planes were coming in and out from Mindanao. I remember not long before dawn a couple were trying to come in, with their wing lights full on, missed the field on their first pass, and were circling when some trigger-finger boy in the ack-ack decided they were Japs and opened up on them.

"We got out of bed just as dawn was breaking and, folding our sheets inside our brown blankets so no white would show, stuffed them under the khaki cots—we didn't want anything that would indicate on a Jap recon picture that we were now sleeping in that field. The Japs were reccing the hell out of the place with high-altitude cameras, two or three times daily."

"I spent the next day in the tower and it was much like the first, except it was plainer and plainer that we would have to abandon Clark. Here we were encircled with bomb pits, right under Formosa, and with almost no fighters left to defend us—they had other jobs to do—and little enough ack-ack."

"So the next morning the evacuation began. They gave me one of the planes they had patched up, and Al Mueller and I made two trips back and forth to Del Monte loaded down with members of the ground crews who were to service our planes at Del Monte."

"I'll never forget my last trip out. It was at night of course—it wasn't safe to leave a plane on the ground by day at Clark any more. We were taking off at three in the morning in order to be through the danger zone by dawn, and I'd had almost no sleep at all. But while they were warming the motors they came running to me with the news that there was a pretty bad leak in my fuel line. So what in hell to do? I could wait while they ripped fuel line from one of the semiwrecked Forts standing around on the field, and installed it in mine. But by then it would be well after dawn, and if we encountered Jap fighters, there I'd be, with sergeants stuffed into every corner of the plane, so that we wouldn't have room to swivel a machine gun in our own defense."

"Beloved Doing all right under circumstances Wire Eddy's brother, Frank."

"Of course I sent the wire, but I couldn't understand at all. Eddie, of course, was Frank's navigator on Old 99. But what about the other boys? Why hadn't Frank told me to wire their families of all the sergeants. It wasn't like Frank to forget."

"Anyway, all cables are unsatisfactory. This one was dated at Manila on the seventeenth, so of course Frank had been alive then. But I hadn't got it until the nineteenth. Anything could have happened in those two days, and for the first time in my life I was powerless to help him. I'd been furiously writing letters—still addressing them to Clark Field. Each was a problem, because I wanted each to fill a need. I couldn't tell him I was worried, because that would be letting him down. He would think I didn't have complete confidence in him. I would start to write the little news about family affairs, and it seemed so trite—because maybe he'd be reading it in a foxhole, not having eaten for a week. Maybe he'd be wounded. And maybe each one would be the last letter he would get—for a long while the only thing he'd hear from me."

"I got the story from Eddie Oliver, who had been my navigator on Old 99—he and I were the only survivors of the entire crew—when he got down to Del Monte a few days later."

"The Japs, having recrossed Clark Field thoroughly, came over all ready for business. Some guy had carelessly left a pillow exposed in the cornfield, so they knew we'd been sleeping there. They blew hell out of it with their high-altitude stuff, and didn't touch the regular flying field, which they'd put out in the first day's raid. Then their fighters came over and with incendiaries set fire to the nipa shacks which had been our quarters. In them was everything I owned, including the watches, diaries, and wallets which had belonged to the crew of Old 99."

"It was now hopeless to operate from Clark, everyone saw. Anyway, the Japs had landed light tanks on the coast at Apuri, so five hundred rifles were issued to what ground personnel we had left there and they went off with infantry units to chase them out if they could. The poor devils ended up on Bataan. Each time we moved, we had to leave some of the ground crews behind."

"So here we were now at Del Monte, about fifteen Fortresses in all, but patched up and in such bad

"Then I had to do something about myself—I could see that. Sitting in my room thinking, I would go to pieces. And I wanted to get started doing something useful before Christmas. Back in October Frank promised me he'd call on Christmas Day, and now I realized I'd been building on hearing his voice then more than I knew. I also realized that maybe he wouldn't be able to. If that call didn't come through, it would be hard for me to take it."

"My little brother (he's a fighter pilot now) was getting married out on the Coast during the holidays. They were asking me to go out. But suppose Frank did call me Christmas, and missed me? I decided to wait in Omaha for that call."

"But just waiting would drive any one crazy. I wanted to help—to get close to the Air Corps. So I went down to Colonel Houghland's office—he was air officer of our 7th Corps area in Omaha—and put it up to him."

"He didn't laugh because I wanted to work without pay—he couldn't have been nicer. He showed me huge piles of applications for aviation cadet assignments in the Air Corps that were coming in. I could help, he explained, by classifying and filing these, getting them in their proper groups, help speed up the stream of reinforcements which the boys out East would need so badly—we didn't dream how badly."

"We needed everything," said Frank. "Ground crews, pilots, co-pilots. And to make it worse, our own group commander, Colonel Eu-bank, had been hurt and was in a Manila hospital."

"We were getting more and more uneasy. Here we were, comfortable on this beautiful field. It was as peaceful as Clark Field had been before December eighth. We'd fled from Clark down here to Mindanao, and even as we were arriving the Japs were putting troops ashore at the southern tip of this same island, where thirty thousand Japanese "farmers" had taken over the city of Davao on the first day."

"But here at Del Monte we saw people who didn't seem to know

"He wasn't thinking about how many gross tons that Jap ship displaced."

war was on. The only military around was some kind of a transportation outfit. The first day we were there I got hold of a couple of privates and gave them orders to dim out the headlights of every car—no matter whose—that approached the field. But the transportation officer decided he'd stop all that. It seemed the boys, carrying out my orders, had even stopped a staff car, and the transportation officer explained that they needed more light.

"Well, our planes were on that field, and I knew the Japs were headed down the coast and would be here soon enough anyway, and I didn't want to attract them any sooner than necessary."

"But before they did come, the old 10th Bombardment Group—or what was left of it—got in some mighty hard licks at them. For instance, there was the Le Gasp Bay mission. Our Intelligence reported a big concentration of Jap ships moving south toward us down the coast of Luzon. Of course that meant the handwriting on the wall for us, particularly if one was a carrier with Zeros which would presently be in range of us and could strafe us on the ground—remember we hadn't a single American fighter within five hundred miles."

"Sure enough, Intelligence reported that they thought one of this concentration was a carrier, and now they were just off Le Gaspl. It was up to us to take off and do what we could. We'd been working like hell to get the planes in shape, and finally had six which we thought could complete the mission and get home. But remember Old 99 was back on Clark, and I was a planeless pilot. So it ought to be Harry's story—he was navigator on Jack Adams' plane."

"Well," said Harry Schieber, the navigator, "it was like this. The six of us were to start at ten o'clock, and Jim Connally rolled out first, and got a flat tire right on the runway—throwing one wing into the ground and crumpling it. That left five, and it wasn't so good, because there is safety in numbers in Fortresses—the more of them that go over a target together, the more fire power you can bring to bear against the Zeros, and the more Forts will get back home."

"But anyway we started. The pilots were Shorty Wheless, Pease, Lee Coats, Vandevanter, and of course Jack Adams—I was his navigator. "We are flying in formation to our agreed rendezvous, in case we get lost in heavy weather—a point thirty-five miles due west of our target—and we are due to be there in two hours and fifteen minutes after our start."

John Van Dorpe, S 1/c, San Francisco, Calif., Fleet Post Office, addresses the Legion:

"Dear Fellow Comrades—I have just received your 'moral boosting' letter with the season's greetings from my good friends in Antioch, and I would have received your letter sooner, but it was delayed traveling from Virginia. I also wish to thank you for sending me that big list with the Antioch boys' addresses. Now that I have their addresses I can write to my buddies with whom I had so much fun in the 'good old days.' Right now I am with the Naval Construction battalion that is going great work here. Our battalion had its name in the Washington newspapers for finishing a construction project in half the time it was supposed to take them."

"I like the Seabees because this outfit gives you a chance to continue doing the same work you had done in civilian life and then we can return to our happy homes with some useful experience that we gained while we were in the service. The Seabees are building and fighting from the sunny tropics to Iceland, and you can ask any marine who was in action and he will tell you plenty about the Seabees."

"Jack Crandall, my cousin by marriage, is in the Seabees and I am trying to see if he is stationed here, because I would like very much to talk to a fellow from Antioch. The mailman of our battalion is a former resident of Antioch and lived at Pike's Corner for quite a few years. He asked me if he could read the Antioch newspaper when I finish reading it, and that's what I'm doing, because I know when he reads it his morale rises. Thanks a million for sending me the Antioch News and also making me feel at home with all my good friends from Antioch. I hear 'taps' now, so I'll say good-bye, and God bless all of my good friends and comrades from Antioch."

Jack Crandall, my cousin by marriage, is in the Seabees and I am trying to see if he is stationed here, because I would like very much to talk to a fellow from Antioch. The mailman of our battalion is a former resident of Antioch and lived at Pike's Corners for quite a few years. Roy Aronson and I are still together in this outfit and we're getting kinda used to the rainy climate. They say that they have six months of bad weather and six months of winter over here. We've been here several months. Hank Quedenfeld looked us up and we three went to town—There are several Antioch boys over here—but he is the only one we've seen.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Major Aerial Blows Smash Germany; Allies Finish Conquest of Solomons As Troops Entrench in Green Islands; Cut Civilians' Share of Canned Goods

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

China—Chiang Kai-shek's infantrymen are shown sweeping through streets of Changsha, capital of China's rice bowl, after bitter forty-day battle with Japanese, in which the city changed hands four times. Few of the city's 10,000 buildings remained undamaged.

SOLOMONS: Campaign Ending

"For all strategic military purposes, this completes the campaign for the Solomons Islands."

Thus spoke Gen. Douglas MacArthur after U. S. and New Zealand troops landed in the Green Islands in the northern Solomons, cutting off 22,000 Japs in their last strongholds from their supply bases of Rabaul and Kavieng. Hemmed in by the Allies' newest positions, even the Japs' efficient barge system by which they have been able to send in supplies at night in almost undistinguishable craft, now is jeopardized.

Because the Japs' communications have been hampered by the Allies' landings, General MacArthur said: "With . . . their barge traffic paralyzed, relief of these scattered garrisons is no longer practicable and their ultimate fate is sealed . . ."

Thus did the Solomons campaign begin August 7, 1942, approach its victorious conclusion.

EUROPE: Pave Invasion Path

France's invasion coast of Calais received steady aerial pounding as the big hour for the second front neared, while Allied and German armies slugged it out below Rome in Italy.

As masses of Allied bombers rocked the Calais area, where the enemy has installed heavy defenses and rocket guns, other planes carried on a 2,300-ton raid on Berlin, leaving the oft-battered German capital smoking in ruins. Of 900 bombers participating, 45 were lost.

Allied forces at the Anzio beachhead below Rome fought viciously to break the armored steel ring the Germans closed around them, and U. S. airmen hammered at Nazi supply lines feeding embattled enemy troops in the region. Forty miles to the southeast, doughboys inched ahead in the Cassino mountains, struggling up heights dominating the enemy's supply routes in the area. Shattered by Flying Forts seeking to prevent its use by the Germans, the historic abbey of Cassino founded by St. Benedict in 529 A. D., lay in rubble.

AXIS PROPERTY: In U. S. Hands

More than 300 business enterprises and 30,000 patents controlled by Axis nations in the U. S. have been seized by the Alien Property Custodian Leo T. Crowley, and the operation and use of many of them are being carried on for benefit of the American war effort.

Patents of great military value have been licensed on a royalty free and non-exclusive basis to American interests and 100 businesses have been taken over by U. S. management for the production of dyestuffs, photographic equipment, electrical apparatus, optical instruments and pharmaceuticals.

Valued at $75 million dollars, Axis investments seized by the Alien Property Custodian include trademarks, copyrights, real and personal property, ships, and property administered by the courts in addition to the businesses and patents. Cash and securities are being held by the treasury.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . In the week's news

ARMY MAIL: Military postal authorities urged well-intentioned people not to write "trivial" letters to servicemen whom they know scarcely, or at all. The postal facilities are unnecessarily burdened with this sort of mail, which interferes with delivery of more important letters, it was explained. Some officers blamed cartoon characters for stimulating the flood of correspondence.

ACCIDENTS: Industrial accidents are causing a loss of production four times as great as strikes, the Chicago Association of Commerce states. Industrial "casualties" are taking a toll equivalent to the withdrawal of 900,000 workers a year.

RAZOR BLADES: Black market operators in Germany, scorning paper reichsmarks, are using razor blades for small change.

MODERN EDUCATION: Proposes New Courses

Among the foremost in the development of modern education, President Robert M. Hutchins of Chicago university has called for abolition of the "colossal frivolities" of present day schools.

Although football was among the frivolities assailed by Dr. Hutchins, his chief criticism was directed against the present methods of educating students by standard courses, which he called the "adding machine" system of summing up credits.

Declaring the present system of eight years of elementary schooling, four years of high school and four years of college were full of duplication and wasted effort, Dr. Hutchins said colleges could be closed without affecting liberal education in any way. For present day college teaching, Dr. Hutchins would substitute lectures, general reading and general examinations.

NURSES:

28,000 Students Needed

To maintain the national health at minimum standards, the U. S. Cadet Nurses corps must recruit 28,000 more students by July 1, to bring total enrollment to 65,000 for the period beginning last September. To bring service up to 1941 levels, 115,000 student nurses would have to be recruited during the 10 month period.

Shortages of nurses first began to be felt in 1942, with many hospitals being compelled to close departments for lack of personnel. Chief bottleneck in training now is in the scarcity of instructors, with many graduate nurses being offered scholarships to take teaching courses.

Heroic service of U. S. nurses on the battlefronts has been brought sharply to the fore during the bitter beachhead fighting below Rome, where five of them have been killed by shell-fire and aerial bombardment, while attending the wounded in field hospitals.

Now the 3,000 residents of Batesville, Ind., know how it feels when manna is showered from heaven!

When a break occurred in the pumping equipment of a pipeline running through the town from Texas to the East, the dry bed of a creek was flooded with gas, threatening the local water supply.

While volunteers feverishly built an emergency dam to prevent the gas from spilling into the water reservoir, some townspeople gathered along the creek with buckets, tubs and barrels to scoop up the precious fuel and lug it home, while others backed their cars to the site and filled their tanks with dippers.

NATIONAL INCOME: For Farmers

Out of America's record national income of $141,717,000,000 in 1943, the U. S. farmer's share was estimated at $10,000,000,000 from sale of crops and produce. Because of increased returns from livestock and livestock products, income jumped $4,000,000,000 over 1942.

In the face of record marketings, receipts from hogs were high in all sections, with a 41 per cent boost in the western north central regions. Because of higher average prices, income from poultry and eggs rose, with Georgia's intake doubling.

Returns from wheat fluctuated, increasing 13 per cent in north central regions, with North Dakota alone enjoying a 40 per cent boost, but slumping 2 per cent in the western area, with Kansas City showing a 5 per cent drop. Although cotton income jumped 20 per cent in the West, it fell 24 per cent in the western north central regions and 5 per cent in the south central area. Receipts in the South Atlantic region approximated 1942.

Because of soaring receipts in the north Atlantic and south central regions, income from oil bearing crops

I'm a one woman army
. . . winning victory
right in my kitchen

I used to wish I were a man. I envied men their part in winning victory. Now I realize I can do plenty myself, right here in my own home, to stop the Axis. I have become a one-woman army, waging war on waste and inefficiency. I tend a victory garden, can foods, collect fats for explosives, save waste paper, buy War Bonds with every dollar I can save.

AND THE QUARTERMASTER CORPS

A family, like an army, marches on its stomach. To keep my family healthy for their war duties, I select their foods methodically, for balanced meals rich in vitamins. I put into practice what I have learned about wartime meal planning. I shun Black Market goods, buy only what I need.

Being in command of a household is no small job. There are vitamin "supply lines" to maintain on rationed foods . . . daily housecleaning campaigns to organize . . . a budget to balance and still buy War Bonds . . . plenty to do.

Busy though I am, I keep my family's morale high, greet them ever with a smile. Their home is spic and shiny. Their meals colorful and tasty—made with the aid of point-wise recipes obtained at my Public Service office.

What happens when your hat comes down?

SOMEDAY, a group of grim-faced men will walk stiffly into a room, sit down at a table, sign a piece of paper—and the War will be over.

That'll be quite a day. It doesn't take much imagination to picture the way the hats will be tossed into the air all over America on that day.

But what about the day after?

What happens when the tumult and the shouting have died, and all of us turn back to the job of actually making this country the wonderful place we've dreamed it would be "after the War"?

No man knows just what's going to happen then. But we know one thing that must not happen:

We must not have a postwar America fumbling to restore an out-of-gear economy, staggering under a burden of idle factories and idle men, wracked with internal dissension and stricken with poverty and want.

We must not have breadlines and vacant farms and jobless, tired men in Army overcoats tramping city streets.

That is why we must buy War Bonds—now.

For every time you buy a Bond, you not only help finance the War. You help to build up a vast reserve of postwar buying power. Buying power that can mean millions of postwar jobs making billions of dollars' worth of postwar goods and a healthy, prosperous, strong America in which there'll be a richer, happier living for every one of us.

To protect your Country, your family, and your job after the War—buy War Bonds now!
